

History Curriculum Map

History is an incredibly interesting and rewarding subject that teaches students about different societies and allows them to learn from our collective past to help understand the world today. Studying History provides students with vital skills that are important for future careers, such as understanding, explaining and analysing key information, evaluating different interpretations, forming arguments, debates and judgements, research and critical thinking. The key skills focus in History includes understanding and applying the concept of significance, cause and effect, change and continuity and utilising sources of evidence to help with historical enquiries. We embrace the teaching of British, European and Wider World history in an inclusive way that celebrates the achievements of and uncovers the suffering of diverse individuals, peoples, cultures and ethnicities in History. We teach about the mistakes that have happened in the past, the wrongdoings as well as the successes and breakthroughs in human development and cover important topics that have an impact on real world issues that affect us today, including Britain in the post-colonial era, the slave trade, civil rights, holocaust, anti-Semitism and British values of respect, tolerance, diversity, freedom of speech and peace.
